SPECIALISTS SUGGESTS

SENDING SOIL SAMPLES SOON

Paul N. Mosher, Extension Service crops specialist, University of Maine, suggests that Maine farmers would be wise to take soil samples now. By submitting the samples to the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station this fall, farmers will have the recommendations for liming and fertilizing their fields in time to plan orders for next spring. The county agent at the Extension Service office or the farmer-fieldman or committeeman at the county Production and Marketing Administration office will arrange to have soil samples taken. Avoid the rush by sending in your soil samples soon.

GOULD ACADEMY

GOULD TIES MEXICO, 13-13

One of the finest performances for an opening game was turned in by Gould Academy as they very nearly upset a well seasoned team; but had to be satisfied with a tie. Two plays in which Gould was caught offside made the difference between victory and a tie.

Mexico, undefeated and unscored upon in three games, was favored to win but it didn't take long for Ed Burnham to burst through the Pinto line and race 40 yards for the first touchdown early in the first period. Both teams showed offensive strength as each netted a first down.

After the initial scoring by Gould, the Pintos rallied to score twice and assume the lead. In the final period a little "razle-dazle" ending with a long pass, Adams to Hastings, brought Gould back into a tie. In the last six minutes both teams had chances to put across the winning touchdown but failed.

The regulars for Gould were Corey and Hastings at the end spots; Baren and Pettapiece at tackles; and Gale and Sweeney performing at the guard positions. Olson performed at center with the backfield composed of Adams, Rowe, Barnham, Linnell and Murphy. Corey was great on defense and Burnham sparked on the offense. Rowe also played exceptionally well.

Gould's greatest weakness seemed to be in pass defense and also a weakness at defensive right end. These have been working on strengthening these points this week.

Scoring:
Gould 7 0 0 6-13
Mexico 0 0 7 0-13

South Paris will have all his regulars in shape to start in the home positions as they did last week at Mexico. The game is slated for Alumni Field at 2 P. M.

Science Says We Shouldn't Starve

SCIENCE believes the world can continue to feed its constantly increasing population, possibly due to rise from the current estimate of two and one half billion to as much as four billion by the end of the century.

The assurance was given during the recent International Geographical Congress in Washington. The Society was one of the hosts to the gathering of delegates from more than 50 foreign countries.

Dr. W. H. Sebrell, Jr., director of this country's National Institutes of Health, reported to a symposium on world food supply that chemistry and agricultural technology, advancing side by side, inevitably will keep pace with the numerical growth of the human race.

He said that eradication of malaria—and he called this entirely possible—alone would increase food yields in all parts of the globe by making agricultural workers more productive.

Dr. Theodore Schultz of the University of Chicago's department of economics told the same group that the United States, if called upon, could increase its food productivity by 20 percent in five years, or enough to feed 50 to 100 million more people.

Dr. George Kurlyan, University of Madras, said India probably was not as yet making the best use of its farm land. In many instances, he told his scientific audience, tracts are either too large or too small to be efficient, and much land that could raise foodstuffs is presently devoted to commercial crops such as a jute.

Other Congress speakers expressed the opinion that the increasing population will have to be fed from land already in use because there are "no longer empty areas worth developing."

Dr. Josue de Castro of the University of Brazil disagreed in part. He held that the bottomlands of the Amazon River country could be made vastly productive.

More and more of our driving will be done after dark, as the nights grow longer. The State Police emphasize the importance of dimming our lights when meeting other cars or when following another car on the highway.

THE STARS

By Lyn Connolly

DON McNEILL'S "Breakfast Club" will not double into TV this fall after all . . . It was decided a simulcast would be too expensive . . . Many an artist wishes he might do the sort of "concert tour" Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis are due to start in October . . . They figure to rake in $100,000 . . . Looks as if the much heralded Charles Laughton show won't debut until next January . . . Faye Emerson plans to return to television in a daytime NBC spot this fall . . . Can't keep a good woman down . . . The music of Richard Rodgers' "Victory at Sea" which premieres next month on NBC-TV, is the talk of music and video circles . . . Said to be his most profound creative work to date.

Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz will perform for London audiences during Coronation Week next June . . . Radio Theatre, long-time Monday night favorite, is still shopping around without luck for a successor to William Kelchley . . . Cecil B. DeMille doesn't appear to be slated for his former job as the show's emcee . . . CBS is auditioning to replace Cathy Lewis as co-star on "My Friend Irma" . . . Could it be that Marie doesn't like being overshadowed by the far more talented Cathy?

PLATTER CHATTER

COLUMBIA—This company has come up with an inspired album featuring The Chordettes, the lovely barbershop quartet from Arthur Godfrey's show . . . They do a collection of lovely, sentimental melodies in a nostalgic mood that is most appealing. Included in their excellent repertoire are such standard favorites as "S'posin'," "Sentimental Journey," "Basin Street Blues," "Kentucky Babe," "Carolina Moon," "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," "Anchovy," "Drifting and Dreaming," "Anniversary Waltz," "Little Street Where Old Friends Meet," and several others.

In singles, Columbia offers Johnnie Ray in his latest disc, "Love Me," and "Faith Can Move Mountains," a pretty good waxing . . . Paulette Goddard gives "Glow Worm" a unique workout . . . Reverse has "Sul Sin Fa."

"Mid-morning let down" is largely psychological and not attributable to a breakfast high in starches and sugar.

The new Shell service station at the corner of Mechanic and High Streets opened for business Wednesday morning under the management of Charles (Pete) Chapin. Mr. Chapin has had years of experience in this line moving to the new location Tuesday night from the Dick Young service station which he has carried on successfully for several years.

The new station, of the colonial type, is 28 by 48 feet in size, of brick and cinder block construction. Equipped with forced hot air heating, large showroom and office, it is up to the minute in every detail. It is the latest of several such stations owned by Ruth Carver Ames, Shell oil distributor, and was built by Peachey Builders of Augusta. Lafayette Peachey has been in charge of the construction, which is a credit to his company.

The building is practically fireproof with its cinder block and brick walls, concrete floors, sheet rock partitions and ceilings, insulation and asphalt shingles.

REFRIGERATORS can be kept clean daily if simply wiped with a cloth dipped in soapy water. Rinse with cloth dipped in clear water and then dry.

Defrost your refrigerator whenever the ice has become thick. Defrost around the freezing unit. If you don't the refrigerator will not operate at its maximum efficiency. Foods will stain the white porcelain enamel surface of the refrigerator unless they're wiped as promptly as spilled. Stains which aren't stubborn will yield to rubbing with a cut lemon, baking soda or some kitchen cleaner.

Rust stains are the most difficult to remove on refrigerators. A weak solution (5 percent) of oxalic acid (poison) applied with paper toweling and rinsed off thoroughly in a few seconds, will usually remove them. If this acid is left on the surface for too long a time, the metal will be removed or, at least, weakened.

Ice cube trays should always be washed, after defrosting, with warm soapy or detergent suds. Rinse them thoroughly before refilling with clean water.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Savory Veal Steaks

- 1 1/2 pounds veal shoulder steak
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1 1/2 teaspoons dry mustard
- 2 tablespoons lard
- 2 onions
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup milk

Mix dry ingredients and pound into the meat. Brown one side in hot fat, sprinkle with remaining flour mixture, then turn and cover with sliced onions. When second side is brown, add water and cover. Simmer 1 1/2 hours or until tender. Remove meat to platter, add milk to drippings, heat thoroughly and pour over meat.

Accumulations of dirt and slime frequently clog the drain pipe of ice refrigerators. Remove the pipe and clean with a tablespoon of borax or baking soda in a pint of water. Baking soda dissolved over the ice, in ice refrigerators, keeps the drain pipe sweet and clean. Use the ice compartment of the refrigerator for storing frozen foods, ice cream and home-made frozen desserts.

COLUMBIA ECONOMIST SAYS GOVERNMENT PROVOKED AND PROLONGED STEEL STRIKE

Reviewing the history of the recent steel strike in the Sept. 22 issue of The Freeman, Columbia University Professor Leo Wolman charged "there is convincing evidence that what the Federal government did during all stages of the steel labor controversy succeeding in provoking, instead of averting, the strike and prolonging it once it was ordered."

"This," the noted economist added, "has been an episode marked by mistaken public policy, uninformed and incendiary statements by public officials, and what the record suggests to be open disregard for the public interest."

Writing on "Lessons of the Steel Strike," Wolman claimed that the "not inconsiderable" political power of many unions has caused politicians and the government to "replace bargaining and negotiation with the various forms of intervention which are at the government's disposal."

He further predicted "extensive regulation of the practices and policies of private business" as well as compulsory arbitration of labor disputes if the government's present labor policies are long continued.

The administration's anxiety to lend its assistance to organized labor has made negotiated contracts difficult to arrive at, Wolman stated, because large unions find it profitable to appeal for governmental intervention and support. "More often than not," unions call a strike "to force a government decision on an unwilling employer."

The decision made in 1951 to give the Wage Stabilization Board Authority over disputes as well as wages paved the way for the steel strike, Wolman believes.

"What the change meant," he noted, "was that the new board would be less concerned with stabilizing wages than with preventing strikes." This he described as "a plain invitation to unions not to agree with anything at home, but to bring their grievances to Washington."

The Columbia professor pointed out that Philip Murray, president of the steel union, knew before appealing to the WSB that the proceedings would be lengthy. The reason Murray delayed the strike was that "he expected to get favorable terms from the board."

"These he got," Wolman wrote, "and they immeasurably strengthened his bargaining power in his subsequent dealings with the employers. Far from losing by the delay, he gained from it. An additional waiting period of 80 days required by the Taft-Hartley Act, would surely not have harmed the members of his union. They would have been working at a high rate of wages, instead of losing all their earnings by striking."

More than 3,500 daughters of the 142 steel used since artificial breeding of dairy cattle began in Maine once an average production of 9,221 pounds of milk, testing 4.3 per cent butterfat, and 297 pounds of fat.

If you plan to go to a football game this week end? If you do the Maine State Police ask you to remember that traffic conditions will be unusual. Don't take a chance and watch out for the other fellow who may not be careful. Remember, you don't have to be at fault to be killed.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK APPROACHES

National Fire Prevention Week is scheduled for next week, October 5 to 11. Philip S. Parsons, Extension Service farm management specialist, is in charge of Maine's agricultural participation in the week. Farm fires cost about 122 million dollars and kill more than 5,500 farm people each year in the United States. Prevention measures include a thorough inspection of each farm home, barn, and premises for fire hazards and then a complete clean-up. Equipment and methods for fighting farm fires should be ready for action in case a fire starts.

Less than half the sugar consumed in the United States goes directly into the kitchen. Nearly 60 per cent is sold to food manufacturers.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, October 2
Bind up the testimony, seal the teaching among my disciples. (Leviticus 8:16, R. S. V.) Read Romans 12:1-5.

FOR what purpose do I live in the world? It is that I may glorify God and enjoy Him forever. I can glorify God by completely submitting to His will as revealed to me in His Word. I can so make the Word mine that those who come in contact with me may know that I have been with Jesus. It is His will that I be a true witness to the saving power of the crucified and risen Redeemer, our Lord Jesus Christ. To evangelize for His sake is my greatest and most sacred work.

At least three doors open before me, and to every Christian, to do the will of God. I can personally take the marvelous good news of the Gospel to my fellow men whose greatest need is salvation by faith in Jesus Christ. My fellow men may be my next-door neighbors or they may be in far distant lands. Also with my tithes and offerings I can help others who go out to proclaim the Gospel of Christ. And I can pray for others. Prayer for others is the greatest service God has entrusted to His children.

Prayer

Lord, open my eyes today to see opportunities to labor for Thee and glorify Thy holy name. Give me courage to enter into Thy work. Use me as one to spread Thy teachings among Thy disciples. In Christ's name. Amen.

V. A. NEWS LETTER

World War II veterans who re-entered service since June 27, 1950, will have their unused loan entitlement under the World War II GI Bill cancelled when they are released from active duty and may receive new entitlement under the Korean GI Bill, according to Manager M. L. Stoddard of the Veterans Administration Center, Togus.

The result is that these World War II veterans, like all veterans eligible under Korean GI Bill, will have ten years from the end of the Korean emergency, a date to be set by Presidential proclamation, or by concurrent resolution of the Congress, to obtain GI loans. The World War II GI loan deadline is July 25, 1957, Stoddard said.

He explained that the GI loan program is designed to encourage lending institutions to make loans with small down payments and at a low interest rate because of the protection of the VA guaranty.

Three types of loan are permissible: (1) to purchase, construct, or improve a home; (2) to buy a farm, farm land, livestock, farm machinery and other farm supplies and equipment; and (3) to buy a business or otherwise enable a veteran to undertake or expand a legitimate business venture.

Ordinarily, VA does not lend money to the veteran. The veteran makes his own arrangement for the loan through the usual financing channels—banks, savings and loan associations and the like. This is the first step in securing a GI loan after the property or business venture has been selected.

Veterans are advised by Stoddard not to sign any contracts or commitments to purchase property until they are assured that a particular lender will make the GI loan.

VA then guarantees or insures the lender against loss up to 60 percent of the loan, with a maximum of $7,500, for home loans. On other loans, VA guarantees the lender against loss up to 50 percent of the loan with a maximum of

LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Today I go in for Questions and Answers. I am trying to locate some guy or dame who does anything—or could do anything—about the many predictions as are discredited out breathless like, by our synthetic economists there in Swivel-Chair-Town. The great man there will say, "the number of eggs set under the nation's hens in April were 8 per cent less than in April 1951." So I say to you, man to man, what do you do about it or do you know anybody who does anything about it—that is my question today.

$4,000 on real estate and $2,000 on non-real estate loans.

The interest rate on VA-guaranteed loans may not exceed 4 percent a year on the unpaid balance. Fees and charges may not exceed those allowed by VA.

Also, the VA pays the lender for credit to the veteran's loan—an amount equal to four per cent of the guarantee, but not more than $160. This is a gift to the veteran, and not another loan.

Boot On Other Foot

by George Peck

George Peck

(EDITOR'S NOTE: George Peck is Chairman of the Board of the Labor - Management Foundation and Executive Editor of its official publication, PARTNERS.)

In his speech at Portland, Oregon, on September 8th, Governor Adlai E. Stevenson denounced what he feared was the development of "a one-party press in a two-party country."

He went on to assert that the "overwhelming majority" of the American press opposed Democrats "automatically," and he ridiculed the contention of some editors that a Democrat victory this year would endanger the survival of the two-party system.

In stating that a vast majority of the press is clamoring for a Democrat defeat in November, the Democrat Presidential nominee is correct. He could not, however, be more wrong in his deduction that this is a menace to the two-party system.

On the contrary, this resurgence of the editors against continuing the Democrat administration in power for another four years indicates that if the two-party system is to survive, there must be a change of administration come next January 20th.

The fact that many editors who steadfastly supported the Democratic ticket through the third and fourth terms of Franklin Roosevelt and the re-election of Harry Truman in 1948 have now come to the conclusion that if "the mess" which is festering in Washington today, is to be cleared up, it can only be done by a complete change of administration.

These editors do not for a moment doubt the sincerity and integrity of Adlai Stevenson, but they have serious doubts, in fact, they feel certain that if he is elected, try as he will, he will not be able to do the over-all, thorough job of house-cleaning that is essential to saving this nation from complete moral, political and economic disintegration.

To give the Democrat Party another four years in power during which to further entrench itself could well sound the death knell of the Republican Party and put an end to America's two-party system.

It is why so many editors have temporarily switched their allegiance to the Republican Party. They feel, and with good reason, that with the demise of the opposition party, it would not be long until freedom of the press would follow it to the graveyard.

None of the editors maintains that all of the grafters and wasters are contained within the Democrat Party and that if elected, all of the Republicans would be without sin. Should the Republican Party triumph at the polls on November 4th, not many moons will have waxed and waned until many of these same editors will again join hands with the opposition in pointing out flaws, as they will inevitably develop, in the administration or the country's affairs by the party of the elephant.

All of us can be eternally thankful to the gentlemen of the press. They are the watchdogs who keep our elected representatives on their toes, and failing this, lead the fight to depose them.

Even the Democrat Party itself is on record to the effect that it had business for the nation to maintain one political party in power for too long a period of time. In 1884, after the Republicans had been in power for sixteen years, the Democratic Party platform had this to say:

"The Government should not always be controlled by one political party. Frequent change of administration is as necessary as constant recurrence to the popular will."

"Otherwise, abuses grow, and the Government, instead of being carried on for the general welfare becomes an instrumentality for imposing heavy burdens on the many who are governed, for the benefit of the few who govern. Public servants thus become arbitrary rulers."

Doesn't that put the boot on the other foot? Well, at any rate the newspaper editors of that day called for a change and the voters apparently decided that the Democrats had "something" when they drew up their 1884 platform, because in November of that year they elected Grover Cleveland, Democrat, to the Presidency. They felt it was time for a change.

It is a safe guess that none of the Democrat candidates are going to quote the 1884 platform of the party in their campaign speeches. That platform, incidentally, justifies the position taken by the present day press which Governor Stevenson decries. Yes, verily, it is time for a change!
